SADIE’S STORY

One look into Sadie’s eyes and you know this sweet girl’s journey to North Toronto Cat Rescue was not easy. Deemed too feral to live in a traditional home by the shelter that originally housed her, Sadie, as part of their Barn Cat Feral Release Program was placed into a barn on the outskirts of Markham. This was meant to be Sadie’s new home for the rest of her life, but Sadie had other ideas.

As a “working” barn cat, Sadie’s only source of food came from the mice she caught. Perhaps driven by hunger, Sadie left the confines of the barn and set out on her perilous journey. Facing the dangers of busy highways and roadways as well as the risk of being hunted by predators, Sadie undeterred, traveled for seven kilometers before taking refuge under the deck of a family home in Markham.

Throughout a very frigid winter, Sadie lived under the deck and was fed by the homeowners. Once the weather broke, it was decided to trap her and bring her to us here at North Toronto Cat Recue where she could finally experience the comfort of a warm home that she so rightly deserves.

Once inside, it was obvious that Sadie was grateful for her new living situation.

Sadie has tested positive for FIV, a virus we believe was transmitted to her by being bitten by an infected feral cat. This by no means makes Sadie unadoptable. In fact, she can have the same lifespan as any cat and easily live among cats unaffected by the virus.

Sadie is a quiet and shy lap cat. She gets along well with other cats and would make an excellent addition to any family home. She is waiting patiently for the right person to walk through the door and discover what a gem she is. To meet Sadie please contact the shelter at (905) 940-CATS (2287).
When Kitty Sheds Her Winter Coat

by Nomi Berger

WHAT TO DO?

As your kitty trades her heavy winter coat for a light summer one by shedding – a natural and important process – she’s helping to remove any dead fur that causes skin irritation. On the other hand, no shedding may be a sign of poor diet or an underlying medical issue, while too much shedding that leads to bald patches or a very thin coat warrants a visit to the vet.

Although some breeds shed more – or less – than other breeds, their exposure to daylight also plays a part in “signaling” their bodies when it’s time for a seasonal shed. And so, if your cat spends a great deal of time outside in the sunshine or lying in direct sunlight inside, she may be more prone to shedding as the days grow longer.

BRUSHING YOUR CAT REGULARLY is the best way to manage any excess hair at the source before it starts wafting through your home in tufts or emanating from kitty herself in the form of hairballs. A good indicator of how often you should brush her is the length and thickness of her coat.

If your kitty isn’t used to being brushed or quickly becomes fidgety, it’s important to make the process as stress free as possible for her. Begin with brief sessions and reward her with plenty of praise and high value treats. Once she’s more relaxed, increase the duration of the brushing sessions, and by making it a positive bonding experience between the two of you, she’ll appreciate it even more.

Always brush WITH THE GRAIN in the natural direction that her fur grows. Brushing out knots and mats can be difficult and some may need to be cut out. If your cat is severely matted, it’s advisable to see a groomer or consult your vet before trying to remove the mats yourself.

Longhaired cats are best served by starting with a long, stiff shedding rake or comb that reaches down near the skin and dislodges hair from the undercoat while leaving the outer coat almost entirely unaffected. They should then be brushed at least every two days.

For shorthaired cats, begin with a bristle brush. This loosens some of the hair trapped near the skin that causes irritation. Shorthaired cats with a double coat require less brushing than longhaired cats, while those with a single coat need even less. Whatever the length of your cat’s hair, ending each session with a slicker brush (its smaller bristles are ideal for grabbing the hair dislodged by the brushing) is another way to keep her coat smooth, shiny and sleek.

Adoption Update

Boys Will Be Boys (or “Engines Racing in Neuter”) by Alan Dickson

The cats Rusty (née Russell) and PawCo (née Norman, but now short for “Apocalypse”) heretofore known as “Da Boys” came into our home and our lives via an internet search that turned up the North Toronto Cat Rescue centre in much the way we presume on-line dating sites work. We had recently lost a 23-year-old female cat who had ruled the roost with a firm hand and the attitude to back up her demands! After a few months of quiet mourning we were ready for the challenge of new cats having nearly always lived with two felines through our 40+ years of marriage.

At the rescue centre we saw many cats that might have suited us but Rusty’s sole focus was staring out the window while allowing us gentle petting. He was a 2-3 yr old who had spent some time living rough in the woods. The younger cat (7-8 months?) was active, restless, and curious but tolerated our attention.

Once in our home, the two relative unknowns to each other bonded almost instantly. PawCo was young enough that he needed a comfort-giver and mentor. Rusty has the patience of a saint. Of the seven cats we’ve had through the years, he is by far the most even-tempered and tolerant of kittens, vets, and fawning “parents”.

The two of them are non-stop—except for sudden naps—creators of chaos! They chase soft foam golf balls, which Rusty returns like a Labrador retriever, wrestle like WWF stars, and tumble in their IKEA tunnel, which is the best $7 we ever spent!

Both are too busy to be lap cats but our experience is that such acceptance comes with age. They have certainly livened up our home—and our lives—with their frantic antics!

WHY DOES IT MATTER?
Every cat rescued from the street means not only improving his or her life but also provides a great benefit to the community. One mating pair of cats has the capability of being the fore-bearers of over 400,000 offspring in a seven-year window. For every cat we rescue, spay or neuter, we are stopping that cruel cycle of unwanted kittens being born into the wild. In our 30 plus years of rescue work, we have saved 3,000 cats from a life on the street. If we assume that represents 1,500 mating pairs, we have potentially stopped 600,000 unwanted kittens from being born only to live a short and cruel life. Imagine the devastation that would occur to our wild bird populations alone if this were to go unchecked.

Your support is the bricks and mortar that will build our house. Help us continue to save the lives of our most vulnerable feline friends. Be part of the House that Love Builds.

HOW YOU CAN HELP

VOLUNTEER WITH US. To say volunteers are the backbone of our charity would be an understatement. We are 100% volunteer run, without you there is no us and NTCR is always looking for helping hands on a variety of tasks. We need you to help share our message and champion our cause.

THROW A FUNDRAISER. It’s never been easier to raise donation funds thanks to social media platforms. You can create simple fundraisers and ask friends and followers to donate to your campaign with a simple click of a button. If you live in a more analog world, host a community fundraiser. Bake sales, garage sales, raffles, sponsored walks/runs, shopping with our partner organizations, all these acts add up and have a huge impact on helping us attain our financial goals.

BECOME A PATRON. We want to create a shelter that represents the community that helps build it. We are offering various sponsorship packages for those who can donate large sums of money. We want to build lasting partnerships with our donors and honour their generosity by branding their name on or inside the shelter.

The NTCR is reaching out to our wonderful community to rally around us and help raise those dollars to build our house. We have set a financial goal of one million dollars. I know what you may be thinking...wow...that is A LOT of money and you are correct. This is no small favour that we ask but we truly believe that together as a community we can bring this vision to life.
